

Institute of World Culture

EARTH DAY FORUM

What About Water?

Monday, April 24, 3:00 – 4:00 pm (PDT)
Concord Hall, 1407 Chapala Street, Santa Barbara, CA
Presenter: Brenton Kelly, Quail Springs Permaculture

In-person Event presented by the UNA-USA, Santa Barbara and Tri-Counties

In celebration of Earth Day, the IWC is co-hosting with the UNA-USA, Santa Barbara & Tri-Counties*, to present Brenton Kelly in Concord Hall on Monday, April 24th at 3:00 pm. Brenton serves as the Watershed Stewardship and Advocacy Director for the Quail Springs Permaculture community. Brenton will talk about watershed and water issues in the Cuyama Valley, one of the driest areas in the State, and its implications for global water issues. Born in Lusaka, Northern Rhodesia, he witnessed a variety of civil and revolutionary conflicts across Africa as a child. Brenton attended U.C.S.B. and earned a BA in Environmental Studies and Studio Art. He managed the Isla Vista Recreation and Park District and practiced the art of land stewardship. He bought Island Seed and Feed with an old friend, Matt Buckmaster, and served the community with his knowledge. In 2008, Brenton and his wife, Jan Smith, moved to Quail Springs to help advance food production systems and program offerings by farming and teaching. *United Nations Association–United State of America, Santa Barbara and Tri-Counties.

For more information: <http://www.worldculture.org>