Chinese medicine is a comprehensive and complete form of healing. Western medicine has its own beauty and has its own unique attributes. The patient's health is the primary goal, and this presentation can express how we can bring the two medical modalities, Western and Chinese, together to achieve it. Our speaker, Gayatri Heesen is a graduate of Delhi University with an English literature emphasis. She went on to receive a Masters in Chinese Medicine from the Santa Barbara College of Oriental Medicine and received her doctorate at Yo San University in Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine. She is a licensed practitioner, and has been in practice for 25 years.
